1. INTERNSHIP OVERVIEW

This report presents an account of the internship undertaken by the author with Basti Ki Pathshala Foundation, a not-for-profit society registered under the Indian Societies Registration Act, 1860 (Society Registration No. K/KAP/0062863), engaged in the education and welfare of underprivileged children. The internship was carried out as a Fundraising Internship for a period of one month, commencing on 27th July 2026 and concluding on 27th August 2026, as recorded on the Certificate of Internship issued by the organization.

The internship was undertaken as part of the requirement of the Bachelor of Technology (Computer Science and Engineering) programme at IILM University, Greater Noida, and involved responsibilities relating to fundraising in support of the organization's education initiatives, donor documentation and communication, and maintenance of proof of funds raised.

2. ORGANIZATION PROFILE

Basti Ki Pathshala Foundation is a not-for-profit society registered under the Indian Societies Registration Act, 1860, bearing Society Registration Number K/KAP/0062863. The organization is led by its President, Ms. Sunita Shukla.

The Foundation is engaged in charitable and welfare activities aimed at empowering underprivileged children through education. Its mission centres on improving access to learning opportunities for children from economically disadvantaged backgrounds, and it relies significantly on public donations and volunteer or intern participation to sustain and expand its programmes.

The organization engages interns to support its fundraising initiatives, enabling it to mobilise the public contributions necessary to further its broader mission of child education and welfare.

3. INTRODUCTION

Access to quality education remains a significant challenge for underprivileged children in many parts of India, and not-for-profit organizations such as Basti Ki Pathshala Foundation play a vital role in bridging this gap through community-driven welfare and education initiatives. Such organizations depend heavily on public donations and the active participation of volunteers and interns to sustain their programmes, making fundraising and donor engagement critical functions within the sector.

Fundraising for a social cause requires more than the collection of funds; it involves responsible and honest communication with prospective donors, accurate documentation of contributions received, and consistent ethical conduct throughout the process. Interns engaged in such roles are expected to develop skills in donor communication, basic record-keeping, and outreach, while also learning to balance these responsibilities against academic commitments.

This report documents the author's internship experience with Basti Ki Pathshala Foundation in this context, covering the objectives, scope, duties, methodology and outcomes of the internship, along with the professional dimensions of working within a not-for-profit fundraising environment.

4. INTERNSHIP OBJECTIVES

The internship was undertaken with the following objectives:

- To understand the functioning and mission of a not-for-profit society engaged in education-focused welfare work.
- To contribute to ongoing fundraising efforts supporting the Foundation's child-education programmes.
- To develop donor communication and interpersonal skills through direct engagement with prospective contributors.
- To understand the basic process of documenting donations and maintaining proof of funds raised.
- To develop the ability to plan and work towards self-determined fundraising goals within a limited timeframe.
- To build time-management skills in balancing internship responsibilities with academic coursework.
- To gain an understanding of how a grassroots not-for-profit organization mobilises public support.
- To develop a sense of professional responsibility and to understand the importance of ethical conduct while engaging with the public on behalf of an organization.

5. SCOPE OF THE INTERNSHIP

The scope of the internship, as undertaken with Basti Ki Pathshala Foundation, encompassed the following areas:

- Support for the organization's fundraising activities in aid of its child-education programmes.
- Outreach and communication with prospective donors regarding the Foundation's mission and welfare work.
- Basic documentation of donors and donations received through the author's fundraising efforts.
- Maintenance of proof of funds raised, for the organization's internal record-keeping.
- Completion of the organization's onboarding process at the commencement of the internship.

The scope of the internship was limited to these fundraising and documentation-related responsibilities, and did not involve any technical, software development, or data-engineering work.

6. DUTIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES

6.1 Fundraising for Child Education

The intern was responsible for raising donations in support of Basti Ki Pathshala Foundation's programmes aimed at empowering underprivileged children through education.

6.2 Donor Communication and Documentation

The intern was required to communicate the objectives of the Foundation's work to prospective donors and to maintain basic records of contributions received, in line with the organization's informal record-keeping practices.

6.3 Fundraising Proof

The intern was responsible for keeping track of funds raised through her efforts, including relevant proof such as payment confirmations, for the organization's records.

6.4 Time Management

The one-month duration of the internship required the intern to plan her outreach efforts efficiently while continuing to meet ongoing academic commitments.

6.5 Onboarding

The intern completed the organization's onboarding process at the start of the internship as a condition of participation in the fundraising programme.

7. FUNDRAISING AND DONATION ACTIVITIES

A central component of the internship was fundraising in support of Basti Ki Pathshala Foundation's mission to empower underprivileged children through education. This involved reaching out to potential donors, including friends, family and personal contacts, and communicating the objectives of the organization's welfare work in a responsible and accurate manner.

Fundraising communication in the not-for-profit sector requires a high degree of ethical conduct, as donors place trust in both the individual soliciting the contribution and the organization on whose behalf funds are being raised. Throughout the internship, care was taken to ensure that communication with prospective donors was honest and consistent with the Foundation's stated objectives.

Over the course of the one-month internship, a modest sum of under Rs. 2,000 was raised through personal outreach. While limited in scale, this exercise provided direct, practical exposure to the process of engaging the public on behalf of a social cause and reinforced the importance of persistence and clear communication in fundraising work.

8. DONOR DOCUMENTATION AND RECORD KEEPING

As part of the fundraising process, the intern maintained basic records of the donors approached and the contributions received, in order to support the organization's own record-keeping requirements.

Handling of donor-related information required attention to accuracy and confidentiality. No sensitive personal information relating to any donor is reproduced in this report; such information was handled solely for the purpose of supporting the organization's internal records.

This aspect of the internship provided exposure to the basic documentation practices that a grassroots not-for-profit organization follows when engaging with public donors, and underscored the importance of accuracy and discretion when handling information provided by third parties.

9. INTERNSHIP METHODOLOGY

The internship followed a practical, outreach-driven methodology rather than a structured technical curriculum. This methodology comprised the following stages:

- Completing the Foundation's onboarding process and understanding its mission and activities.
- Understanding the specific fundraising responsibilities expected of the intern.
- Identifying and approaching prospective donors among personal and family contacts.
- Communicating the Foundation's objectives and the purpose of the fundraising campaign to prospective donors.
- Collecting and recording contributions received through personal outreach.
- Maintaining basic proof of funds raised for the organization's records.
- Managing internship responsibilities alongside academic coursework over the one-month period.
- Completing the internship and receiving the Certificate of Internship on conclusion of the programme.

10. PROFESSIONAL CONDUCT AND COMPLIANCE

The internship required the intern to conduct herself professionally and honestly while engaging with prospective donors on behalf of the organization. Although no formal written internship agreement was executed between the intern and Basti Ki Pathshala Foundation, the intern completed the organization's onboarding process and undertook her fundraising responsibilities in good faith and in line with the Foundation's stated mission.

Overall, the internship provided practical exposure to the standards of honesty, diligence and accountability expected of individuals engaged in public-facing fundraising work for a charitable cause.

11. CONFIDENTIALITY AND DATA RESPONSIBILITY

During the course of the internship, the intern was mindful of the need to handle any donor-related or organizational information responsibly and with discretion.

In the preparation of this report, care has been taken not to reproduce any sensitive personal data relating to donors or any internal information of the organization.

12. LEARNING OUTCOMES

The internship contributed to the development of the following skills and areas of understanding:

- Improved donor communication and interpersonal skills.
- Greater awareness of fundraising practices within the not-for-profit sector.
- Basic understanding of donor documentation and record-keeping.
- Ability to set and work towards a personal fundraising goal within a limited timeframe.
- Improved time-management skills in balancing internship duties with academic responsibilities.
- Understanding of the operations and mission of a grassroots not-for-profit society.
- Greater awareness of the challenges facing underprivileged children's access to education.
- Development of a sense of professional responsibility and ethical conduct while representing an organization to the public.

13. CHALLENGES AND PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

As with most fundraising-oriented roles, the internship presented certain practical challenges. Communicating the objectives of the Foundation's education-focused welfare work effectively to prospective donors required clarity and persistence, particularly given that fundraising outcomes depend significantly on individual outreach and communication skills.

Working towards a self-set fundraising goal within a one-month period, while continuing to manage ongoing academic coursework, required careful time management and consistent effort.

These challenges, while modest in scale, provided valuable exposure to the practical realities of engaging with the public on behalf of a not-for-profit organization.

14. CONCLUSION

The internship with Basti Ki Pathshala Foundation provided meaningful exposure to the operations of a grassroots not-for-profit society engaged in the education and welfare of underprivileged children, and in particular to the practical realities of fundraising for a social cause. Over the course of the one-month internship, responsibilities relating to donor outreach, basic documentation and fundraising were undertaken in support of the Foundation's mission.

Beyond the specific duties performed, the internship contributed to the development of communication, documentation, time-management and professional-conduct skills that are transferable across future academic and professional contexts.

Overall, this internship experience reinforced the importance of honesty, diligence and accountability when engaging with the public on behalf of a not-for-profit organization, and provided a valuable practical complement to the author's academic study as part of the Bachelor of Technology programme at IILM University.
